Palm Beach County

WHEREAS, there has been no successful drugs for treatment since 2012; and,

WHEREAS, Alzheimer's is just one of many forms of dementia; and

WHEREAS, Florida has 10% of the nation's population that is suffering with a neurocognitive disorder; and,

WHEREAS, nearly 3.8 million family caregivers in Florida help their senior family members who have a neurocognitive disorder; and,

WHEREAS, 65,000 families live in Palm Beach County who must cope with the disease process daily; and

WHEREAS, it is important that the safety and well-being of Alzheimer's families living in our local communities is preserved, as well as their dignity and quality of life, and that services and resources are accessible to all cultures; and

WHEREAS, we extend our gratitude to those advocates and service providers including Alzheimer's Community Care and the Alzheimer's Association Southeast Florida Chapter, who provide vital care and support, value the need for dementia-specific care, and support Alzheimer's families and a cure for Alzheimer's patients.
